Pacific Casual introduces the Montana Extension Table with a slatted top and drop-down butterfly leaves. Constructed of aluminum, the table features an upscale multi-step finish with a base coat of black and a hand-painted top coat in a copper color for an antiqued feel. The clean lines of the tabletop allow it to easily morph from traditional to transitional to modern and from casual to formal, depending on the chairs and accessories used. The butterfly leaves extend the tabletop to 107 inches. With the leaves folded beneath the table, it closes to a more compact 74 inches. It is shown with the companion Versailles arm, side and swivel chairs with a beautiful, classic swirl motif on the chair backs. Upholstered backs and arms are separate components and can be attached on any side of the seats to create sofas, corner units, loungers or chairs. Frames are made of stainless steel with a powder coat paint finish in Forge Grey or Arctic White. A companion piece, the Woodland Screen in teak, can be used to create a more private setting. Also new is the ATOM Collection, a modern group with strong, geometric shapes and angled backrests accented by a central “atom” hole. A stool, pub table and counter height table are added to Titan Rustic Teak, and aluminum top tables are added to Aura. www.teak.com

Castelle has a new licensing agreement and collaboration with Sarah Willett, founder of Patina Vie, a team of vintage collectors, product designers, artists and “style-makers” based in rural Wisconsin. Castelle will produce outdoor designs based on the casual, rustic and European designs created by Patina Vie, the first of which are on display this week in the company’s High Point showroom. Also new are Barclay Butera’s Savannah collection and Castelle’s latest introduction from Biltmore, the Antler Hill Collection. Savannah is Butera’s third collaboration with Castelle. It brings softer lines, bamboo and new finishes to the line. Elaine Smith*IHFC Interhall 612*Media contact: Elaine Smith

Bold saturated colors, including red, marigold yellow, Pacific blue, raspberry pink, coral and rusty orange, are trending at Elaine Smith. Green has moved from deeper, mossy hues to mid tones and natural, fresh greens, even lighter tones of basalt and sage. Meanwhile, neutrals have shifted to cooler tones of grey and white and warmer tones of camel, brass and gold. Our love affair with blue remains strong, from deep navy and indigo to teal, peacock and new mid-tones of Egyptian blue and cobalt, all the way to Aruba and Capri, and finally reaching lighter shades of powder blue and sky blue. Cleaner, more tailored designs are strong for 2019. Fun whimsical patterns, like the new Tropical Bee, sunflowers and bird cages brighten their surroundings. Texture and detail make all the difference and add glamour, interest and personality to the mix. www.ElaineSmith.com

Gloster*Showplace 1825*Media contact: Del Fonte Muse*dmuse@gloster.com

New for 2019 is the DUNE collection by Sebastian Herkner. Its bohemian design aesthetic is created by soft lines, new knitted outdoor fabrics, and layers of upholstered cushions and pillows draped casually over the aluminum frame with teak base. In contrast, new Gem tables feature sharp, octagonal lines and a total of 18 panels carefully cut from ceramic sheets, each beveled to fit flawlessly with its hand-crafted neighbor. The material is both heat and weather proof, making it an ideal surface for harsh outdoor environments. Available in Bianco (white) or Nero (dark) colorations and in two sizes. Also new is the dramatic Kay seating collection by Henrik Pedersen. Deliberately oversized and curved for comfort, the woven backrest combines different profiles and colors of wicker. Luxurious but minimally styled seat and back cushions and a low, slender teak frame complete the look. Kay offers a lounge chair, rocking chair, sofa, ottoman and dining armchair. The all-teak frame and exaggerated tapering details create a warm, architectural design. Named for the conical motif seen throughout the collection, Konos is a triumph of materials, precision and construction. It features a unique new mesh material made from acrylic yarns and natural hemp. Lastly, JANUS et Cie expands the Trig collection with a sleek, contemporary rocking chair. Media contact: Chris Capone

ccapone@seasidecasual.com

Seaside Casual has a mixed media dining collection featuring powder-coated aluminum frames combined with EnviroWood slats and panels. With a retro/industrial yet elegant design, this collection fits in any outdoor setting. Called the HIP collection, it takes its inspiration (and its name) from a mid-century modern classic design element, the hairpin leg. The hairpin leg was designed to maximize strength with minimal materials, creating an open, airy, yet rugged and industrial style. Seaside's version holds up to even the harshest coastal environments in a heavy gauge aluminum rod with a tough powder-coated finish to ensure longevity and eliminate rusting. It comes in Forge Black, a tough, matte finish; a crisp Gloss White; and the neutral grey Platinum with a low luster. Gloss White and Forge Black are new this year and unique to the HIP collection for 2019. www.seasidecasual.com
